Giving Thanks

This is the time of year when we celebrate and give thanks for all the blessings and joys that we have been given by God.

It does not matter if we are talking about secular or religious holidays. It does not matter the country in which we live. Whether it would be for our families, our friends or the way we are able to live, we recognize that we have it much better than most other people and those who lived in the past. It does not matter if we celebrate in any particular way. We give thanks.

How do we express that gratitude? Some might say by attending services or making donations, but I believe that we would all agree that it would be by caring in different ways for each other. How are we engaged to help? Each in our own way.

Last month I wrote about the different committees we have in our Temple. They all have in common that same idea: working together for the benefit of the whole. The whole is all of us. Please join a committee that matches your interest, or contribute as you are able.

I have met some new members, some longtime members whom I had never met before, and people trying us out. All seem to be excited about the opportunities available.

Please give us a chance. As I have also said, Now is the time to step forward.

I have remarked in this column and elsewhere that we have several programs that allow us to donate funds for different purposes. The Capital Campaign has resulted in numerous repairs to our beautiful 805 Delaware Building through a generous matching grant. Life and Legacy allows gifts when we will not be here physically and keeps our memory alive. The Cornerstone Society allows us to enhance our dues to support operations. The Kol Nidre Campaign allows us to continue programs not covered by dues. I encourage you to contribute as you can.

Feel free to contact our Philanthropy Chair, Ken Polk, our Kol Nidre Chairs, Samantha and Byron White and Jeff Jolton and Marcy Wood, or myself, if there are any questions. Whether you engage in committee work or help with monetary donations you are expressing that gratitude to God that we all share. It does not matter as to your financial situation, age or schedule. There is an ability to help out for everyone.

Thank you to all of you who have been participating, either for a long time or recently.

That is what makes our Temple function and great. Giving Thanks, each in their own way, and working together.

We hope to hear from you soon.
Thank you.

Into the Light: A Kristallnacht Commemoration Concert

On Tuesday, November 10, the 88th anniversary of Kristallnacht - the "Night of Broken Glass" – a 200-voice choir will gather in the TBZ Sanctuary in a powerful musical tribute honoring the lives forever changed by hatred, while affirming the enduring resilience of the human spirit and our shared responsibility to remember. The concert is a collaboration among Cantors Pavel Roytman. David Rosen, and Susan Lewis-Friedman, and Director of Music Ministries Garrett Martin, and the combined choirs of Temple Beth Zion, the Holy Blossom Temple Singers of Toronto, the Kol Zimrah Community Singers of Chicago and the Westminster Presbyterian Church Choir.

The Concert will progress through themes of “Memories,” “Courage” and “Hope,” featuring music of Lewandowski, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Alter, and contemporary music composed by Stacy Garrop, Cantor Benjie Ellen Schiller, and Cantors Roytman and Lewis-Friedman.

The concert, presented by Temple Beth Zion’s Stained Glass series in partnership with HERO (Holocaust Education Resource Organization), Buffalo Jewish Federation, is part of an international exchange – the same program will be presented on November 9 at a mid-town synagogue in Toronto.

Tickets for the Buffalo performance are available on a pay-what-you-wish basis through Eventbrite. (See QR Code and bit.ly link on the cover.) If you wish to make a donation in support of Temple Beth Zion’s Stained Glass programming, or the Kristallnacht program in particular, please make your donation via the Eventbrite link, or via check payable to Temple Beth Zion, with a notation for “Stained Glass” in the memo field.

Letter from the Rabbi

Giving Thanks

The rabbis teach the first prayer to be spoken upon waking is “Modeh ani…” I give thanks before You, Living Force of Being, who graciously restored my soul. Before we have accomplished anything, we acknowledge having another day is a gift.

Staying positive can be difficult when uncertainty is on the ballot. It will take time to declare the results and to recognize the consequences. “The day is short, the work is great, the laborers are few, and the master is urgent." (Pirkei Avot 2) Better to focus on practical priorities – places where the only obstacles are when we get in our own way. Places like, I wonder what the impact might be if all of us actually started each day with gratitude?

Of course, the month of November brings its theme of gratitude. We are blessed for our families, and for our community, but has it occurred to us we are simply blessed to be? Because our Social Action Committee is, we are able to prepare food for Friends of the Night People, gather food for the North Presbyterian Church Turkey Basket Project, and gather gifts with TBZ Religious School for children in need. By being here, we can make a difference when we welcome a newcomer, or call to check on someone we haven’t seen in a while. We do this because we want others to be there when we need them and those effects are felt throughout our congregation.

Thanksgiving offers us a chance to turn that gratitude into action. A contribution to our food drive, volunteering your time, or inviting a friend to join you at temple are things that you do all the time for which I am grateful. I am grateful that we always have additional room at our dinner table. May our kindness be felt by all those who feel taken for granted. May the thanks we offer deepen our attention to one another, and may that attention help us build a stronger community.

Letter from the Cantor

Cantor's Corner

My great teacher, Rabbi Michael Marmur, reported to us, his students at the Hebrew Union College, Jewish Institute of Religion, that when someone told him they did not believe in God, he said, "which God do you not believe in? The God with a long white beard who sits in a chair on high looking down to judge us? The God who keeps account of all our wrong doings and seeks to punish? When they seemed dumbfounded as to how to respond, we proposed the idea of the God who lives inside each and every one of us. The God who created human beings in God's own image, gifting us free will to make all kinds of choices, good and bad. But most importantly, that the way that we navigate our free will is in the still, small, silent moments when we take the time to listen. In Judaism, we call this the Kol D'mamah Dakah (the "still, small voice"). In fact, we just recited this in one of the signature prayers of our High Holy Days, Unetaneh Tokef, in the section that talks about the great shofar sounding, and the still small voice inside us reminding us to repent on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. The Unetaneh Tokef Prayer tells of the dread the angels experience before God, who inscribes our fate on Rosh Hashanah and seals it on Yom Kippur. However, the good news, as we read in the prayer, is that changing our bad choices, owning up to our mistakes, doing good things for others and above all, listening to God's still small voice in prayer, telling us what to do better, will change the outcome. The next time you get an urge to call a friend, or check on a loved one who has been ill, do it. If you are going somewhere and feeling a super strong urge to avoid a certain path, listen to it. It could save your life. It is likely the still, small voice of God guiding you. It's my prayer that we will all take the time to sit and listen. I feel so blessed to be your Cantor, and I am here for you, if you ever want someone to sit with you in your silence, and maybe help you hear that voice.

TEMPLE BETH ZION
Religious School

What are your best memories from Religious School? Did your parents have to drag you out of bed every Sunday morning? Were you counting the minutes until it was time to leave?

At TBZ Religious School, our goal is quite the opposite. We strive to create an environment where children are excited to come each week, build lasting friendships, and develop the knowledge, values, and confidence they need to live as engaged Jewish adults in today's world.

Our teachers, teaching aides, and madrichim work hard to strike the right balance between learning and fun. The Chai Curriculum we use is designed to do just that, with engaging lesson plans that incorporate movement, hands-on projects, and meaningful discussions. Our Sue Carrel Mazel Tots program and K-3 classes focus on learning about Jewish holidays and traditions, and students often bring home projects that reflect what they have explored in class.

As students move into the older grades, our focus shifts. While holidays remain an important part of Jewish learning, we also encourage students to think critically, share their perspectives, and engage in thoughtful conversations with their classmates. They study Torah portions, the Prophets, social responsibility, and what it means to be Jewish in today's world.

Our 6th-grade students have been exploring what it means to be a Shomer (guardian), tying their learning to this year's theme of Shomrim. Through discussion and reflection, they are taking an introspective look at how they can be guardians of Jewish values, their community, and the Torah.

Our 7th-grade class is using a specialized curriculum to discuss current events and "hot topics," connecting contemporary issues to Jewish teachings and values. Meanwhile, our Aleph Champ Hebrew program allows students to progress at their own pace, building Hebrew skills and confidence as they prepare for their B'nai Mitzvah journeys.

The TBZ Youth Choir provides another wonderful opportunity for friendship, creativity, and fun. This talented group performs at many of our services, including most third-Friday services throughout the year. Your child doesn't need to be a perfect singer to participate! Students who play an instrument are also encouraged to speak with Cantor Susie, who can help them find ways to contribute alongside the choir.

We always welcome families into our classrooms. Feel free to join us on a Sunday morning or reach out to your child's teacher to learn more about what is happening in class.

And here's a fun TBZ fact: Ms. Tizzy and I have known each other since we were students together in Religious School right here at TBZ. We are proud to continue the tradition of Jewish learning and community that helped shape our own lives.

B'Shalom,
Sue

TEMPLE BETH ZION
Kol Nidre Campaign

The High Holy Days have passed. The melodies of Kol Nidre have faded, the shofar has sounded, and a new year has begun.

But our work is not over.

Jewish tradition teaches l'dor v'dor—from generation to generation. Every generation receives a sacred inheritance, and every generation is entrusted with leaving it stronger than it was found. We are not simply the beneficiaries of Temple Beth Zion; we are its stewards. In Pirkei Avot we learn that "[i]t is not your duty to complete the work, but neither are you free to desist from it."

Those who founded Temple Beth Zion in 1850 did not know what our congregation would look like 175 years later. They simply knew it was their responsibility to build, to give, and to serve. Through wars, economic hardship, changing neighborhoods, and the devastating fire of 1961, each generation carried that responsibility forward so that we could inherit the vibrant Jewish community we enjoy today.

Now the work belongs to us.

There is still time to make your Kol Nidre Campaign commitment. Whether through a year-end financial gift, volunteering your time, sharing your talents, or answering the call to leadership, every act strengthens the chain of Jewish life. Every contribution—of resources and of self—helps ensure that Temple Beth Zion remains a place where children learn, families celebrate, mourners find comfort, and Jewish life flourishes.

The High Holy Days may be behind us, but the opportunity to shape the future is still before us.

One day, those who come after us will inherit the Temple Beth Zion we leave behind.

May they look back on our generation and say that when it was our turn, we answered the call—with our hands, our hearts, and our generosity.

Please use the QR code provided or go to https://bit.ly/KolNidreCampaign to make your Kol Nidre contribution. If you have questions or would like to make your pledge over the phone, you are also welcome contact the TBZ office at (716) 836-6565
